PATHWAY TO WORK - EMPLOYMENT REHABILITATION

We provide information and advice on rehabilitation and retraining options for individuals to facilitate their return to the labour market. Our Pathway to Work programme encourages and assists in a pro-active return to training and work and involves an evaluation of skills and experience and identification of the support and assistance available. Details are available from the 'Pathway to Work' pages of our website.

EMPLOYMENT REPORTS

HJS Personnel Services have been involved in the preparation of employment reports for litigation since 1989. Reports are prepared to evaluate the employment and earnings prospects of claimants seeking compensation for loss of earnings and:

- are prepared in accordance with Part 35 of the CPR to evaluate the employment and earnings prospects of claimants seeking compensation for loss of earnings;
- can take the form of a full, detailed report, or a short report targeting specific issues;
- are based on individual research and produced to meet the specific requirements of the case.

Our team of experienced consultants undertakes assignments on behalf of both claimants and defendants, and on joint instructions. As a team we have knowledge and experience of many occupations and industries. We have experience of mediation and industrial tribunals.

Mary Groves

BA (Hons) German Language and Literature
Postgraduate Certificate in Education
Member of the Institute of Careers Guidance
Member of the Vocational Rehabilitation Association (VRA)
Member of the Expert Witness Institute (MEWI)
Associate Member of the Chartered Institute of Personnel & Development

Mary is a director of HJS Personnel Services having joined as a consultant and researcher in 1993. She has evaluated the employment and earnings prospects of a substantial number of people with disabilities, including those who have sustained serious spinal and head injuries. Mary has also prepared reports for employment tribunals and divorce cases and is regularly instructed as a single joint expert. She has assessed the employment and earnings prospects in a wide range of careers, including unskilled manual, skilled, managerial and professional occupations.

Prior to joining HJS Mary worked in education. Her career started as a modern language teacher in Oxfordshire and Northamptonshire, where she was promoted to Head of Department. In 1986 she left mainstream education and worked on a freelance basis in adult education, as a language trainer in industry and as an examiner for the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate, helping to set and moderate examinations for both the national and international market. Mary also worked on numeracy and literacy programmes with both adults and adolescents in order to improve their employability and quality of life. After undertaking the Common Professional Examination she passed the Law Society Finals in 1992.

In addition to preparing employment reports for the court, Mary advises claimants on employment rehabilitation. She attends seminars and conferences to update her knowledge and skills, both in relation to her work as an expert witness and as a rehabilitation consultant. Courses and seminars attended have included those on varied employment areas ranging from IT to the media and fashion industries, and events run by organisations involved in brain injury rehabilitation.

Mary undertook a part-time course in neuroscience at the University of Oxford Department for Continuing Education and has a continuing professional interest in the effect of head injuries on employability.

APIL Expert Database

Jan is a director of HJS Personnel Services and has been involved in all aspects of the preparation of employment and vocational rehabilitation reports since 1994. She has evaluated the employment and earnings prospects of a substantial number of individuals with disabilities ranging from orthopaedic injuries to catastrophic spinal or brain injuries. She has also prepared reports for employment tribunals and divorce disputes. Jan has extensive experience as a single joint expert and has been involved in mediation.

Jan has advised individuals from a broad range of backgrounds on employment rehabilitation and has assisted and supported them in a return to work. She evaluates individuals' skills, experience and abilities and formulates an action plan. During the implementation stage Jan helps clients to prepare for and seek work in a manner which will maximise their chances of gaining a job. The amount of support varies depending upon the individuals' own skills and confidence. A significant part of the rehabilitation process is to improve an individual's confidence in order to equip them for the workplace. Support is also provided in the early stages of new employment to ensure a smooth transition back into work.

Jan spent the early part of her career with Marks & Spencer Plc in commercial management, gaining experience in the areas of personnel and general management. Before joining HJS Personnel Services she spent four years as a recruitment consultant undertaking assignments across a broad range of industry sectors. Recruitment projects were conducted at all levels from administration to senior management. Jan has experience of the construction industry in an accounting and administrative function, working for her father's housebuilding firm.

Jan is a Chartered Member of the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development (CIPD). Her final assessment involved completing a management report which studied the effects of the employment provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. As part of her continuing professional development she has been trained in courtroom skills and in the responsibilities of a Single Joint Expert. In addition, Jan regularly attends seminars and conferences relating to rehabilitation and Expert Witness work.

Morag Underwood

BA (Hons) Biology, University of York
Post graduate Chartered Institute of Bankers qualification

Morag has been an associate with HJS Personnel Services since 1998 during which time she has researched and reported on the labour market situation and employment prospects for numerous claimants involved in personal injury litigation. She has attended training on the changes brought about by the Civil Procedure Rules and now regularly acts as a single joint expert for the courts and tribunals. She keeps up to date with the labour market through liaison with employers as well as by regular review of labour market statistics, salary reviews and employment research. In addition to research, she has been able to use her knowledge of biosciences, finance and business to provide relevant expert information in a number of high profile cases.

Morag also provides assistance to claimants in need of help to return to work. She has experience of providing vocational rehabilitation to help identify roles which are within a claimant's capabilities and to help to re-establish sufficient self-confidence to enable individuals to fulfil their work potential. This includes support with the search for appropriate training and jobs, together with preparation for interview and continues beyond the commencement of work. Morag regularly attends seminars and courses which contribute to the development of rehabilitation professionals.

Prior to joining HJS, Morag worked in banking where she was a commercial manager with Lloyds TSB. Her responsibilities included managing the banking relationships of a portfolio of businesses representing a cross-section of commerce. She was closely involved with their total business planning. During her fifteen-year career with the bank Morag held responsibility for the financial performance and risk management in the West London area, for people management and career counselling within several branches as well as initiating and delivering training on customer service issues throughout the London region.

In 1990 Morag established her own business delivering training initiatives to improve customer service standards in motor trade outlets and within a number of charitable organisations. Her role as Chair of Governors of a primary school also led to her delivering training for school and college governors throughout Northamptonshire. She was also able to gain first hand knowledge of the educational provision for children and adults with special needs. Through extensive reading, Morag has continued to develop the interest in psychology and behaviour first kindled whilst studying for her degree.

Trevor Trivett BA

Trevor Trivett, a qualified electrical engineer, managed a workforce of 1,000 staff in the motor industry before moving within the industry to specialise in IT services for a large multi site organisation.

A licensed pilot himself, he moved to the aviation industry where he was Managing Director of a network of aircraft maintenance companies based in Europe. He was then closely associated with pilot training as the Commercial Director of one of the leading Flight Training Organisations in Europe. There, as Centre Director, he was heavily involved in, and responsible for, setting up and operating several pilot training operations in Europe and the USA.

Trevor is knowledgeable on the requirements of the Regulatory Authority for both fixed wing and helicopter pilots as well as the aircraft engineering requirements of the industry. He has detailed knowledge of the requirements for, and management of, flight instructors, simulator instructors and ground training instructors related to commercial and private pilot training for both European and US Flight Licences. At one point he was responsible for the operation of a large helicopter charter operation including the hire and operation of pilots.

He has provided consultancy services on aviation matters for the last five years and is knowledgeable of the HR issues at all levels within the aviation and engineering industries.
